Now fitted with an alternator replacing the original dynamo, which used to drive the rev-counter, so the rev-counter is not currently working, but is showing 5,044 hours (Hours not warranted). This tractor, which has very straight metal work, has had replacement mud-guards and foot-plates, the tyres are part-worn but appear quite serviceable. For the technically minded, the engine has a Simms Minimec in-line injector pump having the customary cold-start button, which, incidentally, we have not needed to use during the start-ups at the sale-yard. We are informed that the current, elderly owner has owned the tractor from new, he has been retired from farming for many years and has kept his treasured tractor cosseted in his timber-built garage.
